DEATH ENDS AUTO FLIGHT

Police Pursue Thieves In Running Gun Battle On San Pablo Avenue

One man was instantly killed and two others injured, one seriously, in an automobile crash near the Lighthouse Inn at an early hour this morning, following a sensational chase along the state highway by Alameda and Contra Costa county police authorities after alleged automobile thieves.

The dead:

RAY SARVER, 19 of 2929 Sixty-fourth street, Oakland, fractured skull.

The injured:

F. M. RANDOLF, 1724 San Pablo avenue, Oakland

One unidentified man, Saver's companion in the fatal crash; broken pelvic bone, broken ribs and possible internal injuries. Believed to be seriously injured.

The crash is believed to have occurred when the car occupied by Sarver and his companion, who were chased by police officers of Berkeley and El Cerrito, collided with a Stearns-Knight touring car while traveling at a rate of speed estimated at close to 80 miles per hour.

The chase was first instituted by F. G. Wise, Berkeley patrolman, who observed Sarver and his companion pull along side the curb near the University of California tennis courts, Bancroft and College avenue, Berkeley, attempt to start a Packard car parked nearby, and then jump into a Diana roadster and drive at a rapid rate down Bancroft Way.

The Berkeley officer took after the speeding car, which continued down to San Pablo avenue, turning north on the highway. At El Cerrito the chase was taken up by Frank Walsh, El Cerrito police officer, who was joined in the pursuit near the Peckaboo Inn, S. S. Junction, by Wesley Zimmerman, another El Cerrito police officer, who was off duty at the time.

The chase developed into one of a sensational nature, Walsh, Zimmerman and Wise forcing their cars ahead at a rate of speed in excess of 70 miles an hour, Walsh firing several shots at the car ahead in a vain effort to stop its flight.

The trio of pursuing cars were joined shortly after by a car driven by F. Irwin, salesman for the Curry Automobile company here, who shot his machine along at a rapid rate to join the excitement.

Just as the car occupied by Sarver and his companion turned to make the curve at the bridge crossing San Pablo creek it collided with the Stearns-Knight,

Gas Tax Bill Is Passed In Assembly With 63 To 8 Vote

Stamp Of Approval Put On Completion Of Highway System

(By Universal Service)

The Legislature today placed its final stamp of approval of the program for the completion of the California highway system. Senator Arthur H. Breed's bill, increasing the State gasoline tax from 2 cents to 3 cents on the gallon, to provide funds for new road construction, was passed by the Assembly on a ballot of 63 yeas against 8 nays.

The accompanying Breed designating the primary and secondary routes in the State highway system and providing for the expenditure of the new construction fund, was likewise sent to the Governor. The vote was 66 to 5.

The Breed program was presented in the Lower House by Assemblyman E. G. Adams. He declared that this plan to finance road building on a permanent basis has received the endorsement of the California State Automobile Association as well as organizations and interests concerned with highway developments in all sections of California.

The fact that the State Highway Commission's fund for new construction work is now depleted was emphasized as proponents of the Breed bill cited the need for new road operations throughout the state under a stable and equitable financing plan.

Revenues from the one-cent gas tax increase will be expended on a basis of 75 per cent to primary routes and 25 per cent to secondary routes.

BRENNAN HEADS MOOSE LODGE

Ed Brennan was installed to serve a second term as dictator of Richmond lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, at ceremonies held last evening in Moose hall.

Past Dictator Joe Gardella, who acted as installing officer, also inducted the following officers: F. Barry, vice-dictator; Ed Ridley, prelate; Zeb Knott, treasurer; M. J. Arnold, trustees; F. A. Knoell, sergeant at arms; Charles Bear, inside guard.

Brennan was presented with a beautiful jewel, with P. F. Barry making the presentation speech. Members and their ladies enjoyed a banquet and dance late in the evening, with Bert O'Loan, John Oburg, and Mike Phillips in charge.

The organization will give a dance for the Moose relief fund on May 21, at East Shore park. Chick Barry's orchestra will supply the music. P. F. Barry, assisted by the drill team and drum corps of the lodge.

Local Theatres In Big Merger

Merger of the West Coast Theaters, Inc., operators of the California and Richmond theatres here with a number of the largest theatrical firms on the Pacific Coast, was announced yesterday by Mike Gore, president of the West Coast concern.

The merger affects the interests of Marcus Lowe, W. Louis B. Mayer, First National Studios, Adolph Zukor, Publix theatres, Joseph M. Schenck and Fox chain, John Dillon and Harold Franklin.

The First Day of Their Fight for Life

The photographic below conception of the opening scene of the trial of Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder and Henry Judd Gray in the New York state Queens County Court on the charge of murder shows the chief participants of the drama which is engaging public attention. Although four panels were exhausted the first day, not a single juror was chosen. Mrs. Snyder (1) sat tense throughout the proceedings, glaring occasionally at her former lover, Gray (5), who appeared to be in a state bordering on nervous collapse. Others shown are: Judge Hazelton (2), who is defending Mrs. Snyder; Judge Seudder (3), presiding; District Attorney Newcombe (4), prosecutor; Attorneys, Millard and Miller (6 and 7), who are defending Gray; Mrs. Elsie Wolfe (8), matron, who accompanies Mrs. Snyder, and a court attendant and clerk (9 and 10).

BUILDERS HOLD MONTHLY MEET

Over 100 members and guests of the Contra Costa Builders Exchange were present at the monthly entertainment and banquet of the exchange, held last evening in the exchange offices on Fourteenth street.

A. Courteney, Jr., sales manager for the Pacific Portland Cement company, who was the speaker of the evening, gave a highly entertaining talk on "Cooperation and the Value of Business Organization." Courteney related how co-operative organizations such as the builders' exchange tend to promote a better spirit and a cleaner competition in business.

Quota For Red Cross Relief Fund Swelled

Organizations in Richmond are bending ever effort to swell the quota of $1500 assigned by the Red Cross for relief work in the Mississippi valley flood area.

Paul Dettmer, Red Cross filed representative, stressed the need for immediate action, before a meeting of the Richmond local estate club yesterday. The real estate men subscribed $100.

Arrangements are now being made for observing a Mississippi Flood Sunday at the local churches on the next Sabbath.

A flying squadron is meeting with great success in securing contributions for the work. Bellboys and clerks at the Hotel Carquinez are putting all tips received in contribution boxes which in common with the hotel have been distributed all over the city. The children of the Grant school have raised $20 which has been deposited at the hotel. One big-hearted merchant went so far yesterday as to put in money ordinarily spent for cigars toward the fund.

Maximum Extension of 10 Years Provided In Place Of Original 25

ASSEMBLYMAN ROBERT EASLEY OF ANTIOCH INTRODUCES NEW REVISED MEASURE

SACRAMENTO, April 28.—Senator Will R. Sharkey's bill permitting extension of the Carquinez straits toll bridge franchise was today amended in the assembly to provide that the maximum extension shall be 10 years instead of 25 as in the original measure.

The amendment coming from proponents of the legislation was introduced by Assemblyman Robert Easley of Antioch. Easley said he intends to press the bill for passage in its altered form.

The measure passed the senate by a narrow margin recently after much debate. Opponents of the proposal claimed that any extension of the franchise would give the Carquinez Toll Bridge corporation an immense profit at the expense of the public.

The American Toll Bridge company has a 25 year franchise on the Carquinez span granted by the Contra Costa supervisors. Sharkey's original bill would have permitted extension of that franchise to 50 years the argument being that toll rates would then be reduced.

Those lined up against the bill pointed out that the bridge will become a public structure free from all tolls at the expiration of the present franchise. An extension beyond the period for which the company has arranged its financing and estimated a proper return would be against public policy they maintain.

Assemblyman F. C. Clowdsley of Stockton opposing the bill stated he will continue the fight in spite of the amendment. He held that an extension of even 10 years would be unwarranted. "I feel this amendment is an

"There's No Danger Of Her Breaking," Say
Two Attorneys

By DAMON RUNYON
(By Universal Service)

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., April 28.—Tomorrow we will endeavor to chisel under the marble mask and get a peek at the soul, if any, of Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder.

By that we mean the world at large who may be interested in looking for the soul of this particular woman who—if the charges of the state of New York be true—well deserves the title of "the bloody blonde."

Jezebel, Mrs. Borgia, female friend, daughter of the devil, or a woman falsely accused—whatever she may be, Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder steps to the bar of old John Law in the morning as a witness in her own behalf.

The state rested its case against Mrs. Snyder and her palid paramour, Henry Judd Gray at 11:27 this morning, confident that it has piled up enough evidence to burn them both to death in the electric chair, for the butchery of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder.

It is mainly evidence built around and supporting the blood chilling confessions of the pair. Now the woman and the crumpled little corset salesman, their once piping hot passion colder than a dead man's toes, begin trying to save their respective skins at Sing Sing, each trying to shove the other into the room with the little door.

"What did Mrs. Snyder say about the confession of Gray's—that squawk?" I asked her attorneys today.

"Well, let's see she said he began Danna Wallace, the buzz—"

FERRY WRECK FOUND IN BAY

Wreckage of the Golden City, auto and passenger ferry sunk Sunday night, following a crash with the liner Newport, was picked up today by the tug Mariner, Captain William Schum, en route from Richmond to San Francisco, reported yesterday.

It was a part of the upper passenger deck of the ferryboat. Apparently having broken loose from the hull, which sank just outside the Golden Gate, it had come to the surface and was found floating in the ship channel. The wreckage, awash, constituted a menace to bay navigation until it was towed by Schum's tug to pier 41, where it was moored.

Robert Dollar To Dock Here

The S. S. Robert Dollar, largest freighter to make San Francisco bay a regular port of call, is expected to dock at the Richmond wharf No. 1 either late today or early Saturday morning.

A shipment of Contra Costa county petroleum products will be boarded on this vessel according to C. H. Engel, terminal agent. The cargo is bound for Australia.

FLOOD VICTIMS ARM TO EJECT DIKE BREAKERS

Troops Ordered To Use
Drastic Measures In Delta Zone

By ARTHUR HACHTEN
(By Universal Service)

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 28.—Three shots were fired today near Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Maj. Edgar Jadwin, Chief of Army Engineers, and other flood relief leaders while they were inspecting the levee near Poydras, La., which will be blasted open tomorrow.

Secretary Hoover and his party were inspecting the levee from a boat, running about 100 yards from shore, when a shot was heard. In about two minutes two more were fired in rapid succession. The shots rang out from a thicket of willow trees.

Armed with rifles and revolvers some of the people in that section of the country have threatened to kill any one, who attempts to force them to evacuate their homes.

National Guard troops have been ordered into the area to be flooded Friday noon by dynamiting the levee.

These soldiers were said to have orders to use drastic means, if necessary, to get all the people out of the territory before the levee is blasted.

It could not be ascertained from the boat whether the shots were aimed at Secretary Hoover and his party. A check up of that section of the country later revealed that there were no incidents ashore that could account for the shooting.

Secretary Hoover's boat had just turned from the east of the river, where the dynamiting is to be done, to the west side. It was from the west bank of the river that the shots were fired. A National Guardsman sitting on the levee in the vicinity of the shooting did not move, according to observers.

Both sides of the river however, are being guarded day and night, it being feared that persons living in the section to be inundated have designs to blow off the levee at a point, which would endanger the more thickly settled.

In particular I call attention to the campaign to be carried on during the week to raise funds for the Boy Scout movement in this city and county, and commend the effort then to be made to the earnest attention of all residents of this city.

MINDING OUR BUSINESS

Whenever the attention of our international friends is called to Washington's advice that the republic beware of foreign commitments and entangling alliances, they usually try to counter by stating that conditions are different now than when he relinquished the reins of government. The internationalists realize that arguing with Washington would be unpopular in America even now, so they like to tell us that things are not what they used to be, that Uncle Sam is now a grown man and need no longer fear the things which Washington regarded as perils.

It is true that conditions have changed in America since the time of Washington. We have grown rich and powerful. But things have also changed in Europe. European nations are more powerful than they were a century and a quarter ago. We are not the only nation which has gained in strength and resources. Unfortunately however, political conditions have not changed in Europe to any great extent. It is true that new nations have arisen and new alignments have been made but the old political hatreds and the old firebrands are there just the same, even though some of them are in a new guise.

In Washington's day the fear of far-sighted men was that the new republic might plunge into a European war to help France against England. While it was felt that we owed a debt of gratitude to France the wise statesmen knew that America could ill afford to go to war in an attempt to pay that debt.

It is of course true that the situation has changed since then. We are no longer in danger of entering an alliance with France to fight Great Britain. Fortunately our affairs are on a friendly basis with both nations. But there is the danger just the same, and it is the danger that we may, unless we watch our step enter into commitments which might get us into troubles that we now little dream of.

For while France and Britain long ago buried the hatchet there are other jealousies in Europe. These jealousies might involve any or all of a dozen nations in war. Uncle Sam does not want to be tied to any sort of organization that might commit him in advance to take sides in any such possible struggle.

America will in the future as in the past look after her own interests whenever and wherever they are assailed. But America is not going to sign a blank note which may involve it in the future, upon any chimerical pretext of keeping the pace or sustaining the present balance of power in Europe. As Americans we know that there is still a great deal of virtue in minding our own business.

CALCIUM AND SICK HEADACHE

There is about three pounds of calcium (lime) in the body of a man or woman, even one without much backbone. Prof. Henry C. Sherman, one of our best authorities on the chemistry of food and nutrition, believes that the ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans, at least among dwellers in cities and towns is probably more deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element.

It is one thing to take enough calcium (lime) in the form of food, water or medicine, another thing to assimilate, utilize or metabolize the calcium. In the disease called rickets there is some defect in the metabolism or utilization of calcium, rather than a mere shortage of calcium in the diet. What we don't know about calcium metabolism will fill many books in the next few years, but we do know now that an adequate supply of vitamins is essential for the normal utilization of calcium, and especially vitamin D. So if you want to study this branch of physiology and there can be no more desirable line of study for a human being to follow—you should equip yourself with not only Sherman's "Chemistry of Food and Nutrition" (The Macmillan Company, New York) but also Dr. E. V. McCollum's "Food, Nutrition and Health" (E. V. McCollum, Baltimore).

I do not urge victims of migraine (migraine hemicrania, periodic sick headache) to take cod liver oil, but cod liver oil is perhaps the richest known source of vitamin D and I believe I should prefer a course of cod liver oil to a course of cod liver oil. I am subject to migraine.

I do not advise victims of migraine to get sunburned, but I have a mere theory that if I were a doctor I should advise you to get all this clothing off and let the sunlight hit your skin all the time. The ultraviolet influence contributes to the normal calcium metabolism. Not with malice aforethought, but just a touch of that absent-mindedness which we brainy men affect, I have forgotten who first suggested the calcium treatment for periodic sick headache. Here is the latest (fortunately I have not saved these letters):

"Some time ago you told about taking calcium lactate for migraine sick headache. I have had migraine for years, an attack once or sometimes twice a week. A month ago I purchased some five grain tablets of calcium lactate, and on the warning of an attack I would take two tablets (10 grains) and twice I took three tablets (15 grains). During the month I have taken in all about three dozen five grain tablets. Usually, not invariably, they have prevented the headache. But 10 days ago a rash appeared over my body, tiny pimples which itched as usual. This morning, I or burn intensely, but no water observe. I don't see why the boy's or fluid comes from them. Would the calcium lactate turn something out of my system in a rash like this? I have had no threat of a headache since this rash appeared. It may be that the rash is from the calcium, but this has no bearing on the remedial effect of the medicine and is no indication that anything is being "thrown out of the system." Most people who take the calcium treatment take perhaps 10 grains of calcium lactate every day for a period of perhaps six or eight weeks, then reserve a supply to take only when the aura or warning signal of an impending attack occurs, when it is well to take a fairly large dose—15 to 30 grains at once, with plenty of water.

Heartburn

Altho I know you insist you don't know a cure for anything, could you tell me of something that would relieve heartburn? I saw recently that you do not advocate soda as a cure, yet I have never known a doctor who prescribed anything else for it. Reading recently that long continued indigestion or heartburn might cause cancer I feel anxious to find something besides soda to help me. (M. C. A.)

Answer—Long continued indigestion or heartburn never causes cancer, so don't let that notion worry you any more. I do not advocate soda or anything else as a cure for heartburn or anything else, but that doesn't imply that I consider soda harmful. It gives relief. I have advised against the habitual taking of soda. Now heartburn is not a primary condition or independent ailment which can be intelligently treated without regard for the cause in the given case. I advise you to give up the vain search for a cure for heartburn, and submit to a careful medical examination to find out, if possible what ails you.

The Marriage Game

As Played to a Decision Every Day By Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Hutton

HER PLAY: Men are more unreasonable than usual, once they have thrust upon them the responsibilities of parenthood. Ever notice it? In every way to break them up. How ridiculous! He scoffs at love. Does the elder Spender, and says his boy has just GOT to forget all about Elaine. I wonder what he's said if his dad had behaved that way when he was courting the girl who became Richard's mother? How funny you men are after you've become parents!

TRY THIS AND PASS ON

It appears that Columbia University has been testing the character of Sunday school, public and private school children, as well as adults. The results are astounding!

1. Children in public schools cheat four times as much as those in private schools.
2. Children attending schools in which there are new-fangled ideas of teaching cheat much less than those children in ordinary schools.
3. Children's moral codes are based primarily on the moral code of their parents and secondarily on those of their playmates, with little or no relation to the code of the Sunday school teacher.
4. A child's moral code takes more closely after mother's than father's code.
5. Children who were members of Sunday-school cheated as much, and in some cases more than those who didn't go to Sunday school.
6. Most students will cheat when conditions are favorable.
7. Girls cheat more often than boys in the class room.
8. At games boys cheat more than girls.
9. Parents cheat and help their youngsters to cheat.
10. Whew! Whew! Whew!

I suggest that the one who reads that (under-score) boy, girl, teacher, parent) hand it over very quietly to some (girl, boy, parent, teacher) and very mildly get this person into a discussion of just how he could answer the following questions. Don't do any forcing or urging but just make things come around naturally. I'd even copy these questions or buy, beg or borrow extra copies of the paper so the whole family could participate. All can at least participate in the discussion. Under-score, clip send S. A. E. E. and I'll compile the figures and let you know the answers.

Character Testers

1. Neighbors' chickens come through the fence. Is it right, wrong but excusable, entirely wrong to soak the corn in poison and kill the rascals?
2. If you were passing a house and some one unintentionally threw a ball of dirty water on you, ruining your suit, would you tell a policeman, demand an apology, demand damages, laugh it off, or fight?
3. Would you keep a secret which was told you even if by so doing you found out you were covering up a crime? Yes. No.
4. If a boy of fifteen (very big for his age) wants to drive his father's automobile and dad is willing but the law says the boy must be sixteen to be a driver is it right, wrong but excusable or wrong for the boy to get the license stating that he is sixteen?
5. If mother is at home but tells her daughter to say to callers, "Mother is out" is this proper? "Mother is out" is this proper?

What Every Girl Should Know

GISA PRUCHONE

Copyright, 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"WHAT EVERY GIRL SHOULD KNOW," with Patsy Ruth Miller, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Mary Sullivan—tender, beautiful, red-headed—is the mascot of the tennis universe. A practical, queerly spiritual girl is Mary, despite her physical process. She has grown up with tennis balls. Her mother died saving them for a living. Her spirit lives on in Mary. Mary becomes acquainted with Wally Mason, a young reporter. Wally and Mary have much in common. Mary keeps house for her brothers, David and Robert. David, the family support, hopes Mary will get safely married; but Mary disbelieves in love. She loves life. Wally takes her for a night ride.

"What are you telling me, Wally?" Mary was so deliciously sleepy. The breeze ruffled her skirt, and lifted her hair, and crossed the lobe of the ear that wasn't pressed against Wally's cheek. Wally filled her as comfort fills the well-fed tabby at the side of the fire. She cushioned her head against the brown leather of the car and flew with the stars. There was no earth, no long green roadster, no Wally. Just her gold-tipped wings, Elaine, the lily-maid of Astolat flying with the stars in a green roadster. With Lancelot? No. Not Lancelot. Lancelot was home astride his broomstick, stalking a dignified Patch. Then Wally brought her to earth.

"Mary, I love you, dear," he said. The little green car flew on, with the stars keeping pace above and the wind singing against the motor. It was difficult to hear when words were spoken to the blackness of the silence ahead. What she had heard could not possibly be what Wally

"Wally," she placed her hand over his, where it tightened on her shoulder, and was impatient with herself for the moment. "Why did she wish to take his head in her arms, and murmur soothing phrases?" "It's all right, sweet. Don't let anything bother you. I'll be doing round for some time yet, did you know that?—and knowing it, does it hand you a thrill?" She pressed his fingers with her own. Wally had reverted again, and though the absence of the pressure called her back to the light-headedness carried with it even more poignancy, revealing as it did the sombre depths he endeavored to hide. His right manner was a queer curiosity through which one could peer and see, even present, the emotion, the feeling that mattered, that his dizziness could not hide.

A star fell into the black of the night at the right, was a shining grace that faintly lit the path through which it sped. Wally's voice came to her again as something apart from the blur that was at her side. His grasp on her shoulder tightened. He considered it only fair to tell you, you ravishing red-head you with the hair of a medieval page—I consider it only fair to tell you that, with your desire or no, I intend to kiss you. Hard. He looked at her. "How does it strike you?"

"Not any," said Mary firmly, and knew herself for a liar, and was furious with herself for the little skip of her heart in anticipation. The little skip of her heart had come unknowingly. Before Mary had had time to counsel herself. "You Mary! What right has your heart to skip a beat?—you who have no time for love and the embraces that trail in the wake of love? And what you asked lipeness, what is love? Certainly nothing that can in any way affect your entire attention to the wheel. Your instinct, and have no time for the heavy passion, and have not yet reached the stage where you need depend upon a man for support. For you dissected love, and discovered that it pulsated with emotion engendered by either, or all these three. What right has your heart to skip a beat, Mary?" Nevertheless her heart continued to skip. She felt a little pulse in her chest of whose existence she had been unaware heretofore. The feel of Wally's arm hardened across the small of her back. She was drawn toward him, and felt the heat of his lips on her cheek against her breast. Then his lips found hers.

On sped the little green car through the night of milky radiance poured earthward by the stars. Wally was silent beside her, giving his entire attention to the wheel. She cast a glance at him once or twice and then sank still lower in the cushioned seat, placing her head against his arm, and closing her eyes. The savor of his kiss was on her lips, and she touched her handkerchief to her mouth to rid herself of the imprint. The car leaped forward with a jerk, and she touched the bit of linen to her cheek. Should Wally have seen that gesture he would become befuddled as to the cause of it. It was difficult to wipe the feel of his kiss from her lips; however, it had gone deeper than that.

POLICE PURSUE THIEVES ON SAN PABLO

At a late hour this morning Richmond and Berkeley police were making every effort to positively identify the two men, believing them to be criminals out on a "job."

F. M. Randolph, one of the occupants of the Stearns-Knight, was unable to give a lucid account of the crash. With several companions, P. L. Goldman and A. E. Sterling, both of Oakland, he had started toward Oakland, Goldman driving his car, the Stearns-Knight. Randolph received lacerations of the face in the crash, and was taken to the Abbott Emergency hospital, where he was treated by Dr. Hedges, Goldman, driver of the Stearns-Knight, is a former Richmond clothing merchant.

Both cars were badly smashed as a result of the collision, the Diana being almost demolished. Its registry card showed that it was the property of Josephine McNaughton and R. K. Lamoer, of 2100 Virginia street, Berkeley.

Swedish Customs, Institutions Told By Former Local Woman

"Sweden in common with many other European countries is jealous of its American dollar," declares Mrs. R. E. Clausen, former Richmond resident, in a letter to the RECORD-HERALD, received yesterday in which she describes Scandinavian customs and institutions, as seen in her European tour.

"Every one and every institution has its fingers out after the American dollar. Every research man in the universities is in hopes of Rockefeller's giving his department $100,000 for this or that."

"But in spite of the manifest jealousy, if we want service in cafes or shops we speak 'plain American.' It is an assuage to service never equalled in America. The unheard of tip, pourboire and gratuity, is of course the object. The word American commands respect."

Mrs. Clausen has made a particular study of Swedish universities and thinks the educational system is wrong.

"Sweden believes in education for the rich. The poor man is doomed to what learning he can acquire in the elementary school which is comprised of nine grades. If the student is able to afford it, he must attend a private school for a period of two or four years. A severe examination is a requisite to entering the university. This demands a four year course. Students are generally 25 years of age before graduating from an institution of higher learning, and the greater part of the 500,000 population is forced to content itself with grammar school training."

Comparing American men to the European variety, Mrs. Clausen says: "It would be nice if all European men could have an American wives, but I pity the American man who marries European girls unless they can afford a number of servants."

"European girls do not believe in work, they have no desire to learn about the care of a home. Everything is done by downtrodden servants. Servants commonly received $16 per month for 16 hours of work a day."

Before this machine, no bigger than a small-sized radio set and looking very much like it, philosophy, psychology and physiology are supposedly forced to yield the secrets that have puzzled scientists through the ages. It would be the royal road to self-realization—for which, pursuant to the exhortation of "Know Thyself" the ancient wise men went into the desert to fast and our young men and women go to Greenwich Village to "live."

By means of this machine, say its backers:

Young men and women will be able to pick that trade or profession for which they are best fitted.

Employers will be able to select the employees they need, or to place them where they will do the best work.

Criminologists and detectives will be able to determine whether the accused is capable of the crime he is charged with.

Aid to Physicians

Physicians will be able accurately to diagnose diseases and to check up immediately on the effect of their treatment.

This remarkable machine, which can be stowed away in a suitcase, is called the "diagnoscope."

Its inventor is Dr. Zachar Biskay, a Ukrainian physician and its chief demonstrator in Germany, Dr. Erat, a Swiss physician.

The "diagnoscope" is constructed on the theory that all mental, moral and physical functions are "localized" in some particular part or nerve base of the brain, and that each such particular brain locality is in some way connected with a definite point of the outside of the head. That is, every mental and moral faculty and every physical function is represented by a definite point—not bump on the skull. It is also assumed that these nerve bundles react to an electric current in proportion to their development, that is, their capacity.

An electric current is now directed into the body through an electrode which the person to be analyzed holds in his hand. Another electrode is then applied to definite points on the head to connect with this current. This connection is registered by a sound, and this sound is lower or louder depending on which point is touched.

The psychological points they have sorted out in thirteen groups representing:

1. Attention.
2. Memory.
3. General intelligence.
4. Will.
5. General senses, for time, place, rhythm, etc.
6. Motor functions, or physical mechanics.
7. Technique and mathematics.
8. Administration.
9. Art.
10. Philosophy.

RIN-TIN-TIN TO BE SHOWN AT CALIFORNIA

Rin-Tin-Tin, famous canine screen star, has enacted death struggles with many creatures, from men to crocodiles, but never before has he fought a more thrilling dramatic fight than in his latest Warner Bros. production, "While London Sleeps," a picture written and directed by Walter Morosco, which opens this afternoon at the California theatre with Helene Costello and Walter Merrill in the featured human roles.

Rinty, after an equally lasting throughout the story, pits his nine against the hundred and eighty pounds of George Kotsonaros, the world's light-heavyweight wrestling champion, who portrays a ferocious ape-man, the dog is fighting to save his beloved mistress; the "monk" is fighting for her possession, while she, weak with horror, beholds the evenly matched struggle which will decide her fate.

This gripping climax is but one of the many thrills in this melodrama of romance and adventure, and in the sinister shadows of the London district of London, included in the supporting cast are Otto Mattiesen, John Patrick, Dewitt Jennings, Carl Stockdale and Les Bates.

Other features on the same program include "The Cinder Path," another story of "The Collegians," "Mutt and Jeff," "International News" and Eddie Moore at the organ.

Carquinez Bridge, The World's Largest Highway Structure, And Its Builders

OSCAR H. KLATT
PRES. OF
AM. TOLL BRIDGE CO.

C. DERLETH JR.
CHIEF ENGINEER

GEO. CALDER
VICE-PRES.
AND RESIDENT ENGINEER

LATE AVEN J. HANFORD
FIRST PRESIDENT
AM. TOLL BRIDGE CO.

When President Calvin Coolidge presses the golden key in a telegraph instrument on his desk in Washington, May 21, and sends an electric spark across the continent, releasing a giant American flag and setting off four bombs on the bridge tower of the great Carquinez span formally opening the mighty highway structure across the north arm of San Francisco bay to motor traffic the final chapter in an epic of the west will be written.

And the story of Carquinez bridge is more than a story of concrete and steel and Caterpillars and steam shovels and heroic structural steel workers. It is the story of a man with a great vision who died before his dream became a reality. It is the story of Aven J. Hanford, Vallejo grocerman, and Oscar H.

Klatt, traveling salesman, who caught the vision of Hanford and carried on as a partner of Hanford until death claimed the latter and then Klatt proceeded as president of the American Toll Bridge company to see the bridge through to completion. It is the story of engineers, who drew the plans and directed the work of construction, the story of C. Derleth, Jr., chief engineer, dean of the college of civil engineering, University of California, and George Calder, resident engineer, who in his college days sat at the knee of his Chief. These men are the bridge builders of Carquinez.

When the financial powers tightened their purse strings and Hanford and Klatt mortgaged their homes to "carry on," Derleth and Calder stayed on the job. And when the law courts were called upon by enemies of progress, these men still stuck to the job. And on May 21, the bridge builders will look upon a completed job—a job that has made engineering history and broke bridge building records of this magnitude. In making this history brave men died—five of them actual workers on the mighty structure—the sixth man, Aven J. Hanford, first president and organizer of the American Toll Bridge company, who died October 26, 1926.

The photographic composition presented herewith introduces the bridge builders and shows a sweep of the world's greatest highway structure, caught by the camera, looking across Carquinez Straits from the Vallejo side. Some idea of the massive, towering strength of the bridge is indicated by the plant of the California Hawaiian Sugar company in the background and the big ocean-going freighter tied to the sugar company's dock.

MORE THAN 30 DOCTORS—RHEUMATISM QUICKLY RELIEVED

Oakland, Cal., April 16, 1926. During the past eight months I suffered from rheumatism in my hands and legs. Although I tried various remedies and doctors, I obtained no results.

I had also suffered from colitis and kidney troubles for eighteen years and had been treated by more than thirty doctors in Seattle and Oakland. Most of the medicine that they gave me had a bad effect on these organs, and I did not improve in any way. At last, however, I found most wonderful relief in the FONG WAN HERB TREATMENT. I came to Fong Wan to take the tea for rheumatism but not only has the rheumatism gone, but my kidneys and intestines are in fine condition and I am free at last from pain.

When you seek a loan at a bank, you are not asking a favor. It is quite the other way around. A bank MUST lend money in one form or another; that is its business. A borrower from the bank is a desirable customer. Of course a bank must lend its funds safely and in strict conformity to the banking laws. Money is a commodity as is coal or cotton or tobacco. ## DEMPSEY DEFINITELY AGREES TO FIGHT IN JULY

Rickard Cinches Bout Between Ex-Champ And Basque Mauler

By ROBERT A. HEREFORD
(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, April 28.—Jack Dempsey, sometimes known as the manassa mauler, but more vividly remembered as the bomb fisted gentleman who annihilated Fred Fulton in eighteen seconds, blasted the giant Jess Willard loose from his heavyweight title in fewer rounds than a man has fingers on one hand, and dynamited Firpo out of the contenders ranks, today officially agreed to exchange blows with Paulino Uzcudun.

The bout will take place at the Yankee stadium. It will be held on or about the night of July 1. Rickard, after consulting with Paulino and his army of managers this afternoon, zipped his proposal over the telegraph wire to Dempsey out California way. The champions acceptance came zipping back as swiftly as the Morse code and electricity combined could carry it.

After Dempsey's reported indisposition to meet the Spanish woodchopper as an opponent unworthy to be flattened by a former champion there was some surprise expressed at Dempsey's swift acceptance of Rickard's offer. This was explained when it was revealed that Rickard had guaranteed Dempsey not less than $300,000 to fight Paulino.

It is to be inferred that Jack would take upon himself the task of flattening a mountain, no matter how defenseless and unworthy an opponent the mountain should be, if he was guaranteed a price in the quarter-million dollar zone. He flattened the man-mountain Jess Willard for less.

The purse is the largest ever promised to a boxer who has not had the heavyweight crown in his possession.

Although Dempsey may flatten the fancy-named gentleman from Spain, pronto, the bout will be scheduled for fifteen rounds. Tex Rickard expects a crowd of nearly ninety thousand.

The one "nigger in the woodpile" which might prevent the long heralded "comeback" of the former champion, is the fact that Paulino is under the suspension of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Twilight League Meeting Tonight

The last meeting before the opening of the Richmond City Twilight league will take place this evening in "Doc" Seawright's offices in Roosevelt Junior high school.

Portlet money will be paid by the four teams tonight, and signed contracts of the players will be received by the league secretary.

Teams entered in the league are Pullman, Santa Fe, Standard Pacific and Ben Maliks.

commission. The commission declares that the Spaniard must fulfill an engagement with Ed Keely of Boston before he can perform again in this state. Keely, who packs a punch, every bit as powerful as Tom Heeney, and a bit more accurate might upset Tex Rickard's plans by quite rudely spilling Paulino for a count of ten.

However this is just another problem for Tex Rickard, who seems to take a special delight in unravelling the knotty ones.

Traffic Tag Tearer Taxed

George P. Grand tagged by Officer E. C. Povenmire on April 24, appeared in Judge C. A. Odell's court yesterday after a warrant for his arrest had been issued. About 5 o'clock on the day in question Officer Povenmire noticed a light coupe registered to Geo. P. Grand of Berkeley, parked on the southwest corner of Twelfth street and Macdonald avenue, between the sign and the corner. At 5:30 o'clock a young man accompanied by two young girls got into the car and noticed the tag left. Careless of the tag was torn and tossed out of the car window and pieces of it were retrieved by the officer. The young man told the court that it was not he who tore up the tag, but that of a friend of his had been in possession of his car on that particular afternoon in question. He later admitted that he had destroyed the tag and was fined $20 for having done so.

SECOND CROSS COUNTRY RACE IS PROPOSED

NEW YORK, April 28.—Following close on the heels of C. C. Pyle's announced plans for a transcontinental marathon for a $25,000 prize, comes the announcement of the New York Press club proposing a Los Angeles-to-Portland, Me., relay walking race for prizes totaling $100,000.

Long distance runners from all over the world, including many Arab and Tarahumara Indians are to compete in the Pyle run, the promoter said. He hopes to start the race in February, 1928.

The walking race, to be known as the National Western Marathon, in honor of Edward Payson Weston, who hiked over the same route several years ago, is set down for next fall. Arrangements are not yet definite, but G. H. Maines, who made the announcement, said his organization had considered having Boy Scouts form the relay chain and carry a message across the continent as part of a program of publicity for the citizens' military training camps.

Thar's Gole In Them Hills For Somebody Yet

Possibility of there being gold in the Berkeley hills near Alvarado park is indicated by the operations of F. C. Bryant, San Francisco business man, who is sinking a shaft on his holdings in that region. Bryant stated that he has struck a four foot ledge of quartz that he believes will lead to a lode assaying $10,000 a ton.

An abandoned mine, dug in the days of the early Spanish settlement, is located on the O. E. Smedley property, adjoined Bryan's holdings.

HADDEN BOXES NORMAN TONITE AT EL CERRITO

A capacity house is anticipated for tonight when Joe Rossi stages his semi-monthly fight show at the El Cerrito pavilion. Headed by a ten-round go between Eddie Hadden of Oakland and Johnny Norman, the card shapes up as one of the best presented here in months.

Hadden and Norman, both willing mixers, are expected to put up a slashing fight tonight. Mickey Britton and Bobby Mars collide in the semi-windup, scheduled to go six rounds.

Roy Sutherland and Jimmy Mc-Masters of Richmond meet in the six-round special event, with Abe Berg of San Francisco taking on Joe Vierra in a four-round bout. Manual Vasquez and Frankie Perry box the curtain raiser.

area nearer New Orleans. Airplanes fly over the area day and night. Searchlights are played up and down the river and along the river bank.

General Jadwin said that he heard one shot, but that he attached no significance to it. There was much shooting in Colet and Arbi last night and early today. The villages are at the northern fringe of where the river is to be blasted. It is not believed they will suffer from flooding.

National Guard headquarters here received a report in the middle of the night that a band of citizens there was plotting to break the levee.

Additional troops were rushed to the scene from New Orleans. They found hundreds of persons in the streets, many of them carrying rifles and revolvers.

The soldiers patrolled the river front and fired shots at moving objects in the river, taking no chances in the pitch dark that some one was planting dynamite near the levee. Farmers turned out like "minute men," some with shot guns on their shoulders and others with revolvers, all supplied plentifully with ammunition.

Masons To Conduct Rites For Church

McKinley lodge of Masons, of Richmond, will conduct last rites for Palen church, widely known Richmond resident who passed away yesterday morning at the Masonic home at Decota. Funeral services will be conducted from the California crematory in Oakland, Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Church was one of the early pioneers in Richmond. While here he conducted a drayage business and a taxi service. He is survived by his son Donald Church, of Las Vegas, and one other son.

Millions of dollars worth of muskrats are caught yearly by trappers in the country to be flooded tomorrow. The pelts of these animals are used in making high priced furs.

Thus many of the persons living in that section are well supplied with rifles and ammunition. While most of the approximately 7,500 persons living in the area to be flooded, already have come into New Orleans, there are others making trouble for the authorities.

Arrival of additional troops in that section, it was reported, has resulted in a speeding up of the evacuation.

Included in Secretary Hoover's party, which inspected the levee to be blasted, were James L. Fieser, acting chairman of the American Red Cross, George C. Schoenberger, director of the State engineers, and Brig. General Allison J. Owens, president of the Association of Commerce of New Orleans.

Capt. J. E. Mitchell of the fire boat, "Samson," which carried newspaper men, following the Secretary Hoover's boat, the "Tony" said: "I heard one shot about 500 yards ashore, in about two minutes I heard two more shots fired in rapid succession. I did not see who fired the shots. The shore line is thickly covered with willow trees in that section. Secretary Hoover's boat was moving close to the shore, about 100 yards away."

While Secretary Hoover and General Jadwin were inspecting the levee to be blasted, reports came that the floods in lower Mississippi and Arkansas had become worse. Thousands of persons were added to the fast swelling army of refugees.

Estimates today were that the number of persons flooded out would approximate 250,000. The number is steadily being increased by the thousands, as the back water from the levee break at stops Loring, Miss., works its way south, and as the floods from the Arkansas river inundate additional territory.

The most critical point in the flood situation today was said by army engineers to be in the vicinity of Vicksburg, the stops Landing back water and back water from the Yazoo river have met at places and have begun to empty into the Mississippi.

BUILDERS HOLD MONTHLY MEET

Hall Sanders, prominent Richmond attorney and clubman, addressed the gathering on the relief work being done for the Mississippi flood refugees, appealing to the builders to assist in the work.

Casper Pedersen talked on the Boy Scout drive to be commenced next week, and asked the builders to get behind the campaign to put the Boy Scout movement on a more secure basis here.

The members last night voted to hold the monthly social night of the exchange on Thursday evening, with the weekly luncheon at noon.

A program given during the evening included a monologue by Bob Brown, assisted at the piano by Herb Stanton; a little Scottish comedy, by Gumber Hoffman of the W. P. Fuller company; a recitation, by Pryce Roberts; vocal solos, by Archie Winchcole.

Female Fiend In 'Sash' Trial To Take Stand In Own Behalf

ing bustling little man who sits at Mrs. Snyder's side in the courtroom when he isn't on his feet, which is seldom.

"She said—well, wait, now until I recall what she said, "put in ex-Judge Hazelton, the other attorney for the woman, who is as busy as Wallace, but who seems to have more repose. His seems to be the more profoundly legal mind of the restive pair.

They seemed a loss for words. "Do you think she will keep her nerve on the stand?" I asked.

"Yes," they both answered, in unison.

I am inclined to think so, too. Whatever else she may lack, which seems to be plenty, the woman appears to have nerve, or maybe she hasn't any nerves. It is about the same thing.

In any event, she has never for a moment covered like her once callus little pal of those loving days before the black, early morning of March 20. She has been cold, calm, contemptuous, gusty, angry, but never shrinking, save perhaps in that little walk to and from the court between the recesses. She then, passed before the hungry eyes of the spectators.

That seems to be her most severe ordeal.

However, we shall see about that nerve tomorrow.

It is already a complete sell-out as Sam Harris, or some of the other theatrical producers who sat in court today, might put it. Standing room will be at that well known premium as it was today when ladies and gents trod on one another's toes as they elbowed and pushed for a better peep at the woman accused.

It will be terrific tomorrow when Mrs. Snyder goes on the stand. The women folks are anxious to get a more penetrating glance at Ruth than they can acquire when she is sitting behind the bulwark of her counsel and guards.

The session today must have been uninteresting to those who came hoping to hear a little dirt. The state swiftly closed up its case by introducing a number of witnesses from Syracuse to sweep out the last vestiges of Gray's alibis. If any remained. These witnesses included Haddon Gray, a schoolmate of Henry Judd's though no relation, and Harry Platt, a friend of Haddon Gray.

The both frankly admitted helping Henry Judd out in the perpetration of his alibi, even to the extent of destroying evidence, and neither was very happy as they sat in the stand. They held nothing back, though advised by Justice Townsend Scudder that they had certain rights as witnesses.

Henry Judd, inert, head down, as usual never glanced up as he heard his boyhood friend testify, and Haddon Gray proved in his testimony that he was about as good a friend as a man could hope to have. Both Haddon Gray and Platt denied that their testimony was prompted by threats from the district attorney of prosecution as accessories to the murder.

Haddon Gray in the beginning thought he was merely lending a helping hand to his old friend Judd, in a little love affair with his "muse". He it was who mailed the letters in Syracuse for Henry Judd after the latter had left there on his mission of murder to Queens village, and he it was who hung a "don't disturb"

LEGION HEARS OF FLOOD ZONE

Richmond Post, American Legion, heard a convincing expose of conditions in the flood area in the Middle West, at its meeting in Memorial hall last night. Paul Dettmer, field representative of the Red Cross, urged that cooperation be given the local chapter in furtherance of its program of relief work and $10 was contributed by the post for that purpose.

It was announced that at the next session of the Richmond Legion, Troop No. 2, Boy Scouts, will be entertained as guests. The troop is sponsored by the post.

V. S. McClatchy, formerly of the Sacramento Bee, will address the legionnaires on "Communist Doctrines" at this time.

The post and national colors of the local post, will be forwarded to San Jose to assist in observing the 150 anniversary of the founding of the pueblo, Saturday May 7.

sign" on Henry Judd's door in the hotel at Syracuse and left word that Henry was not to be disturbed.

DARING BOY RINGS TWO ON LINKS

The freshly laid turf of the municipal banyard golf links was broken prematurely today by a small boy. Playing alone with three horse shoes he was observed to have made two rings. A "little slam" to say the least. City Manager J. A. McVittie says that the children will be allowed to play in the sand any time. The finest molders' sand will be spread on the floor of the twelve alley links.

J. McVittie, secretary of the Richmond Horseshoe league, is in charge of plans for his organization and the links which
